❖ INTRODUCTION TO THE WORLD ❖

Earth is the only known astronomical object in the universe to harbour life. Our world is divided in-to many countries due to geographic, historic and political reasons. Currently, there are 193 member states registered with the United Nations but some regions and areas have characteristics of an independent country and they function and operate as sovereign nations. Most part of an individual's life is spent in his or her own country which strongly binds the individual to his mother-land. The love and respect for one's mother-land is justified because most needs of an individual are fulfilled by one's own country. Some people get so attached to their own country that they become blind to the world outside of their own nation. However, we should not forget that we live on planet Earth and we have right and responsibility over the whole world. In fact, a large portion of our need is met by other countries in the world. Every country is dependent on other country due to varieties of reasons and for plethora of needs. This complex inter-dependence calls for the need to understand and integrate with the rest of the world.

Our world is so beautiful and vibrant. The beauty of the world is a combination of breathtaking natural wonders, diverse ecosystems, and the harmony of highly diverse living creatures, flora and fauna. Our Earth has surreal landscapes like white sand dunes with emerald lagoons, majestic fjords, vibrant coastal mountains and green plains. This beauty offers a profound, unforgettable experience of nature's splendour. The man-made attractions across the world are calling us to come and explore them and to praise their splendour and beauty. The diversity of people, cultures, customs and governance practices of the countries across the world are a thing to explore and enjoy. Let us make the most of our lives by embracing, exploring, integrating, enjoying and profiting from the whole world!

❖ BENEFITS OF GLOBALIZATION ❖

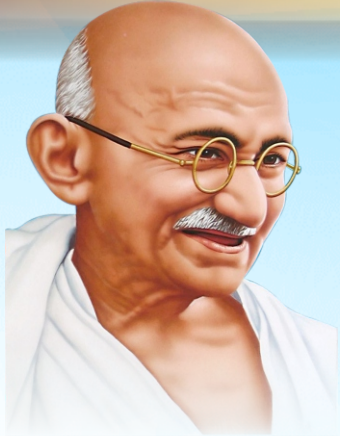

- Market your talent, services and products across the globe to earn more profits
- You will get bigger market for your products and services
- The developed countries in the world offer higher payments for same work or services
- You will not be dependent on only one country for your profession
- You will be a transformed and confident person by seeing the world
- You will learn best practices from the globe to be more efficient and successful
- Increasing access to a wider variety of affordable goods, improving standards of living
- It's our moral responsibility to mingle, work and integrate with the people from all across the world as symbol of human brotherhood

“By promoting, marketing and selling our talent, services and products across the world, we may benefit and leverage our existing competencies and qualities to generate extra-ordinary profits and rewards with little or no further efforts, customization and investments.

Internationalization is not as tough, risky and complex as most people think.”

- Manish Tripathi

Internationalization Success Stories (Indian)

❖ MAHATMA GANDHI ❖

Mahatma Gandhi arrived in London in September 1888 at age 18 and studied law from 1888 to 1891, enrolling at the Inner Temple and University College London to become a barrister. He also passed the University of London matriculation exam in 1890 and studied Latin and Roman Law. Mahatma Gandhi spent 21 years (1893–1914) in South Africa, transforming into a pioneering civil rights activist. After experiencing racial discrimination, notably being thrown off a train in Pietermaritzburg, he pioneered Satyagraha (non-violent resistance) to fight against discriminatory laws. Mahatma Gandhi was the pivotal leader of India's independence movement, employing nonviolent resistance (Satyagraha) and civil disobedience to oppose British rule.

❖ BHARAT RATNA DR. BHIMRAO RAMJI AMBEDKAR ❖

Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar earned his MA in 1915 at age 24 and PhD in Economics in 1916 from Columbia University (USA). He earned his D.Sc. in Economics from London School of Economics (UK) between 1913–1923 with his thesis "The Problem of the Rupee". He also studied at Gray's Inn, London, between 1916–1917 and 1920–1922, qualifying as a barrister. He also studied at the University of Bonn in Germany for a short period of approximately three months between 1922 and 1923, focusing on economics. He fought against the caste system and untouchability, advocating for equality, liberty, and fraternity for India's marginalized communities. He used his knowledge to draft India's Constitution.

❖ SWAMI VIVEKANANDA ❖

Swami Vivekananda, at age 30, famously addressed the World's Parliament of Religions in Chicago on September 11, 1893, introducing Hinduism to the West with his iconic opening, "Sisters and Brothers of America." His speech advocated for religious harmony, tolerance, and universality, earning a standing ovation and establishing himself as a significant figure in intercultural understanding. He left Bombay by ship, the "Peninsular," on May 31, 1893. His journey took him through Ceylon, Singapore, Malaya, China and Japan. He travelled from Japan to Vancouver, Canada, on the ship "Empress of India". He reached Vancouver in July and took a train to Chicago. He introduced Hindu Vedanta and Yoga to the West, elevated Hinduism's global standing, and inspired Indian nationalism and youth.

❖ AISHWARYA RAI ❖

Aishwarya Rai was crowned Miss World 1994 on November 19, 1994 in Sun City, South Africa at age 21. It was a pivotal moment that launched her into global stardom and paved the way for her successful career in Bollywood, global brand endorsements and international cinema. She has a reported net worth of approximately Rs. 900 crore as of early 2026. Today, even at age 52, she looks young, youthful, and attractive and have radiant appearance by using high quality global beauty and hygiene products.
